The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: While Benveniste (U. S. Patent No. 5,814,823) and Tokoro (U. S. Patent No. 5,319,212), both cited in the International Search Report, both use variations in detected ion beam current as indications of vacuum fluctuations, neither reference, nor any other known prior art, suggests compensating for a vacuum fluctuation based on a difference between the detected ion current and a reference ion current. Richards et al. (WIPO International Application WO 00/07030), also cited in the International Search Report, teaches to use a measured beam current of a portion of an ion beam containing ions at a charge state different from a desired charge state and measured at a location that experiences fewer vacuum fluctuations as an indicator of a portion of the same ion beam that contains ions at the desired charge state, but the difference in the beam currents of these two ion beam portions is not utilized for anything, only their ratio so that the ion implant dose can be based on the beam current measured at a location that experiences fewer vacuum fluctuations. Also, no known prior art suggests the use of a controller that receives signals from a detector representative of a detected ion beam current, and controls at least one ion implantation parameter based on the detected ion beam current and a ratio of line of sight to non-line of sight collisions between particles in the ion beam and other particles along the ion beam path to compensate for vacuum fluctuation during implantation.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
